By linking people who have chronic diseases or chronic disease risk factors to community resources, CDC can help them improve their quality of life, prevent or slow down the disease, avoid complications, and reduce the need for more health care.

How We Prevent Chronic Diseases and Promote Health | CDC

Six in ten Americans live with at least one chronic disease, like heart disease and stroke, cancer, or diabetes. These and other chronic diseases are the leading causes of death and disability in America, and they are also a leading driver of health care costs.. At CDC, our job is to make it easier for all Americans to make healthy choices so they can enjoy life.

The accessibility of health care and services is still limited, as is establishing continuity and standardizing care. Also important is the evident lack of integration of interventions, the efficiency and efficacy of which have been proved, not only in controlling disease and limiting functional incapacity, but rather in promoting quality of life.
