A collection of writings by Jon Ronson, an author I really enjoy. He seems to find special people and special circumstances and tells the story in around 15 pages which makes the book easy to drop in and out of. In this book he looks at the TV show Deal or No Deal, it's contestants and Noel Edmonds.

"Lost at Sea" is not a coherent work of long-form journalism. It is a collection of diverse feature articles from the last decade or so. There seems little added to them since their original publication in the Guardian, and as a person who has followed Ronson enough to have read many of these when he originally published them, I felt slightly cheated by that.

Jon Ronson has always had the ability to tell absurd stories you have never heard of before in an educational manner, but unlike works like Them, Lost at Sea is much less analytical and more all of the place. This work is still highly readable, but due to the presentation of the stories and cases, rather than Ronson's own analysis.
