2018's Northern Nightscapes Calendar features images of the night sky, the Milky Way and northern lights from Cook County, Minnesota. Cook County is one of the darkest locations in Minnesota and is as dark as many of the darkest places in the world. The images reflect the many northern light storms that we have had over the last year and some of the great clear nights for Milky Way.

Our signature Northern Light calendar is now in its 19th year. As always it is designed and printed in the UK helping us to ensure the quality is not compromised. The 2018 calendar features a carefully hand-picked selection of images by Joe Cornish that we feel capture the beautiful northern english landscapes that can be found within the North York Moors, Yorkshire Dales, Northumberland and the Lake District.

Aurora Borealis season in northern polar latitudes (Alaska, northern Canada, Greenland, Iceland, Norway, Sweden, Finland and Siberia) runs from August-thru-April. These are the nights with darkness in them. During the summer months of May, June and July it is just too bright to see them in the far northland.

Aurora Prediction and Northern Lights Forecast | Aurora Hunter

The northern lights result when charged particles streaming from the sun collide with molecules high up in Earth's atmosphere, exciting these molecules and causing them to glow.

The Academic Schedule sets the start and end dates for all semester-based programs at Northern Lights College. Non-semester based programs start and end dates are established for each intake, and are defined in the College timetables. Academic courses are normally delivered in a 15-week schedule in one of three semesters.

Sunlight prevents viewing the aurora during the summer at high latitudes. The skies at night are simply too bright as the sun climbs in the sky until the June 21 solstice and then descends. Here in Fairbanks, at about latitude 64.8, our aurora viewing "season" is August 21 to April 21.
