The Whippet - Dog Breed Information And Tips

Whippets like to be with you and even want to be touching you when they sleep. They are gentle and non-aggressive. The biggest danger to people is their wagging tail that can leave welts on you once it gets going and smacks your leg. They are hopeless as protection dogs. History: The whippet hails from humble origins in 18th century Great Britain.

Whippet Dog Breed - Facts and Personality Traits | Hill's Pet

Whippets love running games and require short bursts of vigorous exercise each day. The area must be fenced, for this racy breed is the fastest dog of his weight: he can run up to 35 mph. Whippet puppies can be mischievous and destructive, but adults are calm, undemanding, and unobtrusive indoors, trotting around with a light-footed easy grace and seldom making a Clean water as well as milk would be great, and avoid letting them drink sugary beverages. Leash Training - You should start with basic Whippet care by ensuring your puppy is leash trained. You must approach the matter by guaranteeing your Whippet that a leash is something that is not negative. Feed the dog with a treat or two every time it allows for a leash to be put into it, which will show it that good behavior pleases you and that a leash is not something that is bad.
